The US Forest Service approved the mine with an EIS and Record of Decision in 1986. In June of 2012 the USFS concluded that no new federal action was required for the company to resume operations. So I guess the answer is that the Forest Service is the key agency here.

Subject: Question for Consultation Today

Hi, Shelly,

If the tribes want to protest the Canyon Uranium Mine, who oversees the operation? As I recall ADEQ issues a permit to the facility, but didn't BLM grant permission for the mine in the first place? In short, if they want to protest about the mine itself, who do they call? Thanks!

Colleen
